Transferology – Institutional Update Report

September 1, 2018

Below is an updated Transferology report of all public higher education institutions and the date of their most recent equivalency load. Key changes since the August 1 report have been highlighted. Two institutions that had older data have since updated their equivalencies include Lorain County Community College and Cuyahoga Community College. Washington State Community College has provided final consent to have their data loaded, which CollegeSource will make publicly available the first week of September. Terra State Community College has submitted their data, however a final approval is being sought to officially load their equivalencies.

We have also identified that Shawnee State University is subscribed to the Transfer Evaluation Service (TES), another CollegeSource product that can potentially feed data into Transferology. As of today, CollegeSource is working to identify what steps, if any, can be taken to connect TES and Transferology to enable their equivalencies to load in an automatic update process. On a related note, Southern State Community College is also a subscriber of TES, and next steps include a similar outreach strategy to determine if TES and Transferology can be connected as well.

Lastly, both Hocking College and Central State University had been in contact with ODHE prior to the August 1 report; they both plan to have their equivalencies updated in September and October, respectively.
